Synerteq Inc. announced that the company's CEO Roja Kolachina has been recognized by Minority Enterprise Advocate (MEA) Magazine as one of the Most Powerful Minority Women In Business.

For Immediate Release

FAIRFAX, Va./EWorldWire/March 22, 2010 --- Synerteq Inc., a fast-growing, woman-owned small business that provides program management, systems implementation, and quality control/testing to the government and commercial sectors, today announced that the company's CEO Roja Kolachina has been recognized by MEA Magazine as one of the Most Powerful Minority Women In Business.

MEA Magazine, a publication of the award-winning organization Minority Enterprise Executive Council (MEEC), is hosting a prestigious luncheon recognizing the awardees at The Ritz Carlton Hotel in Washington, D.C. This event honors fifty of the most successful women business leaders across the United States.

MEA Magazine chose Kolachina from a pool of nominations that recognize successful women entrepreneurs who have contributed both professionally and personally to the corporate landscape. The award celebrates women who have endured obstacles, gone the distance for success and excellence, and have enriched their communities through their work.

"I am very proud to be listed among such a wonderful group of business and community leaders," states Kolachina. "I am very happy that Synerteq's contributions to federal and commercial technology growth have been recognized in this manner. This award is a testament to Synerteq's corporate philosophy and goals. Synerteq provides technology solutions to the government and commercial sectors. Our strategy is to satisfy our customer's requirements using relevant, proven industry best practices and deliver solutions that actually work for our clients. This award recognizes the contributions of all Synerteq employees, and their efforts to consistently achieve success and consistently make a difference for our clients and our community."•

The MEEC assists and promotes the interests of minority entrepreneurs by encouraging and promoting the availability of programs to advance the development of small, disadvantaged, and women-owned businesses. This is done in cooperation with federal, state, and local agencies, and with public and private organizations. The "Fifty Powerful Minority Women in Business" is an annual event that recognizes exceptional, accomplished women in the corporate world.
